

ANTH 378A

ARCHEAEOLOGY FIELD SCHOOL

UNDERSTANDING PREHISTORIC PLAINS VILLAGE COMMUNITIES AT LYNCH, NEBRASKA

May 31-July 2, 2020

Like Indiana Jones? How about Lara Croft? They might not be very good archaeologists, but maybe they have made you wonder...can I do that? A field school is a necessity to obtain a job and get into graduate programs in the field of Archaeology. It's also an amazing and memorable experience that you will carry with you for a lifetime. This summer join Dr. Carlson (Augustana University) and Dr. Bamforth (University of Colorado- Boulder) in Lynch, Nebraska, to uncover a mile long Plains Village site. Help to answer questions surrounding how people adapted to rapidly changing environments and forged new societies in the midst of massive social disruption. Learn how people lived centuries ago by excavating and analyzing the materials they left behind. Learn field techniques necessary to carry out an excavation and camp out under the stars as you see what it takes to become a real archaeologist.

FOR MORE INFORMATION CONTACT K.C. CARLSON AT
kcarlson@augie.edu

