

The Gabii Project: Summer Field School in Archaeology

Rome, Italy June 11 – July 17, 2024

About the Gabii Project

We are an international archaeological initiative promoted by the Kelsey Museum of Archaeology at the University of Michigan. We have been excavating the Latin city of Gabii since 2007 in order to study the formation and growth of a city-state that was, as neighbor and rival to Rome in the first millennium BCE, an important player in early Roman history. Our research tackles big questions about the emergence and evolution of urbanism in ancient Italy: from city planning to social stratification and the definition of elite and non-elite spaces and activities; from the development of monumental civic architecture to the abandonment and repurposing of the cityscape; and much else, through the integration of spatial data, architecture and stratigraphy, and a wide variety of finds spanning from the Early Iron Age to Late Antiquity.

What you will learn

- The archaeology of Rome and Latium, including guided trips to select sites and museums and off-site lectures
- Excavation and interpretation of ancient Gabii
- Digital, cutting-edge recording techniques
- Scientific processes, including environmental and biological analysis

What is included

- Program costs: $5,990 (or $5,600 for returners)
- Accommodations in downtown Rome.
- Insurance, equipment, local transportation, weekday lunches, select museum fees.
- 24/7 logistical support.
- Apartments include: kitchen facilities, washing machines, wireless internet.
- Not included: international flight.
- We are willing to facilitate arrangements to help students get credit from their home institutions.

APPLY NOW!

Submit your application online at <https://gabiiproject.org/apply-now/>
by December 1, 2023.

Early decisions made by December 15, 2023

Questions? Contact us
gabii.project@gmail.com