Barunga Community Archaeology

Live and learn alongside Aboriginal community members in a truly off the beaten path field school in Australia's Northern Territory. Guided by Aboriginal Elders and community researchers, this program offers a rare opportunity to learn Indigenous archaeology through daily life, shared meals, and collaborative research within the 300-person Barunga community. Work one-on-one with a Barunga community member on a co-designed heritage project, gaining firsthand experience in how Indigenous knowledge and Western science can be respectfully woven together in the field.

Why you'll love this program
